Rules of Trading Operations

These Rules describe how Digital Trades are placed, priced and settled on the MARKET platform operated by ON SPOT GROUP LLC. They supplement the Service Agreement. If there is a conflict, the Service Agreement applies unless these Rules say they prevail on a specific operational point.

1. Access to trading

Trading is available only on an authenticated Account during the hours published for each Asset. The Company may restrict trading by region, instrument, stake size, or Account status (including pending verification).

2. Placing a trade

To open a Digital Trade the Client selects an Asset, direction (up or down relative to the entry Quote), stake, and expiry. Submission of the instruction is an offer to contract on those parameters. The trade exists only after the server accepts it and assigns a trade identifier.

The Client must have a free balance at least equal to the stake plus any applicable charge. The stake is reserved when the trade is accepted.

3. Quotes

Entry and expiry are determined using Quotes generated by the Company. Refresh rates and displayed precision may vary by Asset. A Quote visible on screen may already have changed by the time the server processes the instruction.

The Company may withhold a Quote, mark an Asset as closed, or refuse new trades when feeds are unstable or when it reasonably believes pricing would be unreliable.

4. Expiry and payout

At expiry the Company compares the settlement Quote with the entry Quote. If the Client's direction is correct, a payout calculated from the published payout ratio is credited. If the direction is incorrect, the stake is lost. If the settlement Quote equals the entry Quote, the handling published for that Asset applies (including possible return of stake or treatment as a loss).

Payout ratios are indicative until the trade is accepted and may change for future trades. Early closure, if offered, is at the Company's discretion and at a price it determines.

5. Record of trades

The Account history and server logs are the official record. Apparent discrepancies on a local device do not override the server record except where the Company accepts that a documented system error occurred.

6. Prohibited conduct

The Client must not use automation that the Company has not approved, coordinate accounts to game payouts, exploit feed delays, or place trades while in possession of inside information. The Company may void trades and freeze funds if it reasonably believes such conduct occurred.

7. Abnormal conditions

Abnormal conditions include, without limitation: extreme volatility; halted or wildly gapping underlying markets; feed corruption; platform malfunction; cyber incidents; and events listed as Force Majeure in the Service Agreement.

During such conditions the Company may cancel pending requests, change payout ratios, adjust or cancel financial results of already accepted trades, shorten available expiries, throttle request rates, suspend selected Assets, or halt trading entirely. It may also take other steps it considers fair and necessary, including in situations not named above.

8. Changes

The Company may amend these Rules by publishing a new version on the website. Continued trading after publication constitutes acceptance.
